JESSIE LLOYD MISSELLEY, JR.

DEFENDANT

AMENDMENT OF CONDITIONS OF SUSPENDED IMPOSITION OF SENTENCE

The Court is aware that there has been significant public interest in this case and that various media entities desire to jointly interview or host Jessie Lloyd Misskelley, Jr. and his co-defendants Damien Wayne Echols and Charles Jason Baldwin. The Court did impose a prohibition on association with known felons as a condition of their suspended impositions of sentence, with an exception for Misskelley in the case of his immediate family and with an exception for Baldwin and Echols in the case of each other.

The Court finds that such joint interviews may be appropriate and the felon-association provision should not prevent such interviews or other events.

The Court hereby amends the condition of suspended imposition of sentence in which Misskelley was prohibited from association with known felons to exclude Damien Echols and Charles Jason Baldwin from the category of persons with whom Misskelley is prohibited from association, but only in connection with interviews and other appearances where their attorneys, journalists, supporters or the general public are also present.

IT IS SO ORDERED.
