The Bridges

- ◇ ● ● ● 1. Market Street: The Market Street Bridge is officially named the John Ross Bridge in honor of Cherokee Chief John Ross. Upon its completion in 1917, it was the largest rolling lift drawbridge in the world.
- ◇ ● ● ● 2. P. R. Olgiati: Built in 1959, the P.R. Olgiati Bridge is named for former Chattanooga mayor Peter "Rudy" Olgiati who was instrumental in laying the modern infrastructure of the city.
- ◇ ● ● ● 3. Veterans: Built in 1984, Veterans Memorial Bridge is iconic for the American flags that line it. These flags are donated by locals to show patriotism and recognize our armed forces.
- ◇ ● ● ● 4. Mike Howard Memorial: This Riverwalk bridge crosses South Chickamauga Creek and is named for Hamilton County Engineer Mike Howard to honor his contributions to Chattanooga and Hamilton County.
- ◇ ● ● ● 5. Wilkes T. Thrasher: Built in 1955, the Wilkes T. Thrasher Bridge was named in honor of prominent Chattanooga judge Wilkes T. Thrasher, Jr. The bridge crosses TVA's Chickamauga Dam.
- ◇ ● ● ● 6. C.B. Robinson: The C.B. Robinson Bridge was named in honor of state representative Clarence Bernard Robinson in 1981. Robinson was a local educator and activist, who worked to promote racial equality throughout the Chattanooga area.
- ◇ ● ● ● 7. Walnut Street: The Historic American Engineering Record recognized the Walnut Street Bridge as "...the first non-military highway bridge across the Tennessee River." Many Chattanoogaans call it the "walking bridge" because it's open only to pedestrians and non-motorized traffic connecting downtown and the North Shore. Anywhere along the nearly half mile Walnut Street Bridge is a great location to watch the race because it's easily accessible on foot or bike, and the flow of runners is steady, but less crowded than earlier bridges.
